ADVENTUROUS, CONFIDENT AND UNAFRAID...

Harry Bunny has always felt safe in his forest home until the day he encounters a mysterious stranger.

Trevor Goanna, feeling hungry one afternoon, turns his sights to Harry Bunny and entices him into a conversation.

Harry's mum has warned him to remember the stranger danger rules...
But will he heed her warning?

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Adele is a proud mother of three adult children, two grandsons and a granddaughter. Having enjoyed writing poetry since a child she dabbled in creative writing in her thirties, creating many drafts. Being a busy mum and working full-time, her writing was put aside for many years. Encouraged by her husband, Greg, and now retired she has relished having time to write as a hobby. Adele feels very blessed to live between homes in two beautiful locations – the Mid North Coast of NSW and the Gold Coast QLD. Adele entwines the personality traits of her grandchildren and her love of nature into her writings.

A CONVERSATION WITH THE AUTHOR

WHY DID YOU WRITE STRANGER DANGER! HARRY BUNNY BEWARE! AND WHAT WERE YOUR INSPIRATIONS?

I was drawn to the necessity of teaching stranger danger to children at an early age. I knew story form with rhyming rules are easier to remember and using a cute little bunny and a big bad goanna as the stranger would help with this.

I was also inspired by living in a pristine forest environment where wildlife abounded.

WHAT DOES YOUR WRITING JOURNEY LOOK LIKE?

It's difficult to say how long the entire process takes me as I write the story but then edit multiple times over a period of many months. I spend a few hours usually researching before beginning a book and try to write at least an hour a day. I'd certainly love to write all day if I could! I love the entire process of writing, finding only the most difficult to be editing all the ideas which are in my mind.
