

Now, being Australia, we've got a few critters that can give you a bit of a nibble if ya aren't careful.

'Right in the cake hole!' shouted Gran.

One of these blighters seemed to be taking a bit too much interest in our Matilda.

Our old Gran's been around a while and as quick as a shot, she jumped in there and flung out her left plugger to sort things out.

● Sydney
● Bondi Beach

A bit further up north, we arrived at Hervey Bay. It's famous for big, sandy Fraser Island as well as some of the biggest critters we have in Australia... whales!

● Hervey Bay

Now, we were all enjoying the whale watching, when Dad yelled out,
'Jeepers, that big fishy has a busted blower!'

But before we could say anything, Dad doggie paddled out, pulled off his plugger and sealed the whale's blowhole!

Although the whale looked a bit on the confused side, it was no fool.

It let out a mighty WHOOSH and nearly sent that plugger to the moon!

After our close encounter with the whale, we hit the frog and toad and checked in at the Great Barrier Reef.

There was heaps of stuff to see but Dad spotted a hammerhead shark that was in a spot of bother.

The poor fella kept bumping his noggin into our boat.

● Great Barrier Reef

AUSTRALIA

Dad asked if he could use my pluggers to give the poor fella a bit of a hand.

A couple of pluggers later, ol' bumpy was still bumping into things but feeling a lot better when he did.

Nice one, Dad!

● Great Barrier Reef

AUSTRALIA