

SYSTEM EXPOSED

Heartbeat Of My Life

Julie Jean Evans

I HAVE MADE PEACE WITH MY PAST.

What I want to yell from the rooftops is "Everyone matters!"

We all have hearts of energy. We all have the capacity to build a good life. Today, I can appreciate all simple pleasures in my day by changing my thinking from past to present.

Good people will make a difference in someone's life.

Within the pages of SYSTEM EXPOSED - Heartbeat of My Life; Julie shares her horrific childhood story; complete with child abuse, homelessness, juvenile jails, institutional care, lies and cover ups from trusted officials. The government just closed their eyes and allowed everything told within to happen to many children.

Yet, as many stories, there were moments of hope that eventually resulted in strength, courage and survival, healing and forgiveness...

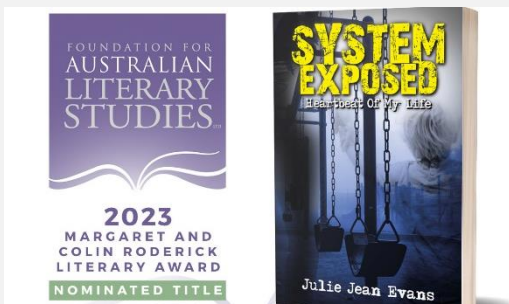

Take warning to read this book with a strong heart as you uncover the story of someone raised as a state ward, among many other children - The Forgotten Australians. You will be privy to confidential government files, as evidence of their severe failure to care for these children they swore to protect.

You will never forget this story.

AUTHOR BIO

Julie Jean Evans born in Balmain Sydney to two loving parents yet she was taken from their care and placed in the child welfare system for reasons unfathomable today... not an uncommon practice for this time.

One of the forgotten Australians, Julie Jean has built a life for her and her seven children. Now she is in Mtttabarra, located at the centre of Queensland, helping to manage the local Exchange Hotel.

For as long as Julie can remember, Julie has had a strong compulsion to craft her story, to have her voice finally heard. This has come from System Exposed - Heartbeat of My Life. It's a life wrenching journey through Julie's life story as she finds her way to a place of hope, happiness and peace.

In Julie's words, this story is to pass on insight not her suffering, to help others to understand The Forgotten Australians and who they are. To educate and reach out to others that have had to endure at the hands of abuse.

A CONVERSATION WITH THE AUTHOR

WHY DID YOU WRITE 'SYSTEM EXPOSED'? WHAT WERE YOUR INSPIRATIONS?

It was always a compulsion. I always thought that, "One day I am going to tell my story to the world, the story I told myself in order to survive all the governmental abuse". I had a story to tell and pray, that people in a position to care for children do their jobs properly. I had many hurdles as I did not have much in way of education. Everything I know was virtually self-taught. After many, many years of trying I eventually got my book published. Now I want to expand and tell the whole story. To educate as well as support those who cannot tell their stories of abuse. For those who are no longer with us to see justice done, let this story be their head stone. Let us make government officials accountable for their rolls they play in our community. This story is to create awareness. This story is my life's dream to have it published, read, and to motivate deep discussion and thought.

IF YOU DIDN'T WRITE, WHAT WOULD YOU DO?

I am presently working as a shop assistant part time as I have not made it in the big league as an author yet. I am a dreamer.

WHAT ARE THE ETHICS OF WRITING?

Non-Fiction should be as accurate as one can get to the truth.
